

TITLE VIII—JOHN GLENN INSTITUTE FOR PUBLIC SERVICE AND PUBLIC POLICYSEC. 801. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

(1) ENDOWMENT FUND.—The term “endowment fund” means a fund established by the University for the purpose of generating income for the support of the Institute.

(2) ENDOWMENT FUND CORPUS.—The term “endowment fund corpus” means an amount equal to the grant or grants awarded under this title plus an amount equal to the matching funds required under section 802(d).

(3) ENDOWMENT FUND INCOME.—The term “endowment fund income” means an amount equal to the total value of the endowment fund minus the endowment fund corpus.

(4) INSTITUTE.—The term “Institute” means the John Glenn Institute for Public Service and Public Policy described in section 802.

(5) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Education.

(6) UNIVERSITY.—The term “University” means the Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio.

SEC. 802. PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.

(a) GRANTS.—From the funds appropriated under section 806, the Secretary is authorized to award a grant to the Ohio State University for the establishment of an endowment fund to support the John Glenn Institute for Public Service and Public Policy. The Secretary may enter into agreements with the University and include in any agreement made pursuant to this title such provisions as are determined necessary by the Secretary to carry out this title.

(b) PURPOSES.—The Institute shall have the following purposes:

(1) To sponsor classes, internships, community service activities, and research projects to stimulate student participation in public service, in order to foster America's next generation of leaders.

(2) To conduct scholarly research in conjunction with public officials on significant issues facing society and to share the results of such research with decisionmakers and legislators as the decisionmakers and legislators address such issues.

(3) To offer opportunities to attend seminars on such topics as budgeting and finance, ethics, personnel management, policy evaluations, and regulatory issues that are designed to assist public officials in learning more about the political process and to expand the organizational skills and policy-making abilities of such officials.

(4) To educate the general public by sponsoring national conferences, seminars, publications, and forums on important public issues.

(5) To provide access to Senator John Glenn's extensive collection of papers, policy decisions, and memorabilia, enabling scholars at all levels to study the Senator's work.

(c) DEPOSIT INTO ENDOWMENT FUND.—The University shall deposit the proceeds of any grant received under this section into the endowment fund.

(d) MATCHING FUNDS REQUIREMENT.—The University may receive a grant under this section only if the University has deposited in the endowment fund established under this title an amount equal to one-third of such grant and has provided adequate assurances to the Secretary that the University will administer the endowment fund in accordance with the requirements of this title. The source of the funds for the University match shall be derived from State, private foundation, corporate, or individual gifts or bequests, but may not include Federal funds or funds derived from any other federally supported fund.

(e) DURATION; CORPUS RULE.—The period of any grant awarded under this section shall not exceed 20 years, and during such period the University shall not withdraw or expend any of the endowment fund corpus. Upon expiration of the grant period, the University may use the endowment fund corpus, plus any endowment fund income for any educational purpose of the University.

SEC. 803. INVESTMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The University shall invest the endowment fund corpus and endowment fund income in accordance with the University's investment policy approved by the Ohio State University Board of Trustees.

(b) JUDGMENT AND CARE.—The University, in investing the endowment fund corpus and endowment fund income, shall exercise the judgment and care, under circumstances then prevailing, which a person of prudence, discretion, and intelligence would exercise in the management of the person's own business affairs.

SEC. 804. WITHDRAWALS AND EXPENDITURES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The University may withdraw and expend the endowment fund income to defray any expenses necessary to the operation of the Institute, including expenses of operations and maintenance, administration, academic and support personnel, construction and renovation, community and student services programs, technical assistance, and research. No endowment fund income or endowment fund corpus may be used for any type of support of the executive officers of the University or for any commercial enterprise or endeavor. Except as provided in subsection (b), the University shall not, in the aggregate, withdraw or expend more than 50 percent of the total aggregate endowment fund income earned prior to the time of withdrawal or expenditure.

(b) SPECIAL RULE.—The Secretary is authorized to permit the University to withdraw or expend more than 50 percent of the total aggregate endowment fund income whenever the University demonstrates such withdrawal or expenditure is necessary because of—

(1) a financial emergency, such as a pending insolvency or temporary liquidity problem;

(2) a life-threatening situation occasioned by a natural disaster or arson; or

(3) another unusual occurrence or exigent circumstance.

(c) REPAYMENT.—

(1) INCOME.—If the University withdraws or expends more than the endowment fund income authorized by this section, the University shall repay the Secretary an amount equal to one-third of the amount improperly expended (representing the Federal share thereof).

(2) CORPUS.—Except as provided in section 802(e)—

(A) the University shall not withdraw or expend any endowment fund corpus; and

(B) if the University withdraws or expends any endowment fund corpus, the University shall repay the Secretary an amount equal to one-third of the amount withdrawn or expended (representing the Federal share thereof) plus any endowment fund income earned thereon.

SEC. 805. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—After notice and an opportunity for a hearing, the Secretary is authorized to terminate a grant and recover any grant funds awarded under this section if the University—

(1) withdraws or expends any endowment fund corpus, or any endowment fund income in excess of the amount authorized by section 804, except as provided in section 802(e);

(2) fails to invest the endowment fund corpus or endowment fund income in accordance with the investment requirements described in section 803; or

(3) fails to account properly to the Secretary, or the General Accounting Office if properly designated by the Secretary to conduct an audit of funds made available under this title, pursuant to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States, concerning investments and expenditures of the endowment fund corpus or endowment fund income.

(b) TERMINATION.—If the Secretary terminates a grant under subsection (a), the University shall return to the Treasury of the United States an amount equal to the sum of the original grant or grants under this title, plus any endowment fund income earned thereon. The Secretary may direct the University to take such other appropriate measures to remedy any violation of this title and to protect the financial interest of the United States.

SEC. 806. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this title $6,000,000 for fiscal year 2000. Funds appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, pursuant to agreement of October 7, I ask the Senate proceed to the consideration of the conference report to accompany S. 2206, the human services reauthorization bill.

I further ask that immediately following adoption of the conference report, the Senate proceed to executive session, and pursuant to the consent agreement of October 6, that the nomination of William A. Fletcher of California to be United States Circuit Judge for the Ninth Circuit, be considered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. For the information of all Senators, there will be about 25 minutes or so on the human services reauthorization bill—without a recorded vote. It will be a voice vote. Then we will go to the Fletcher nomination.

Therefore, the next recorded vote would be at approximately 2:30.

I yield the floor.

COATS HUMAN SERVICES REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 1998—CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now proceed to the consideration of the conference report to accompany S. 2206, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2206), have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses this report, signed by all of the conferees.

(The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of October 6, 1998.)

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, the conference report on the Coats Human Services Reauthorization Act of 1998 includes the Head Start program, the Community Services Block Grant, and the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program. Through this reauthorization, these programs can continue to provide vital assistance to the neediest of Americans. The Assets for Independence Act, also included in this bill, is a new way of helping low-income individuals and families to achieve economic self-sufficiency.

For three decades, Head Start, CSBG, and LIHEAP have effectively helped many low-income families and individuals throughout America. In this legislation, we have used the lessons learned over the past thirty years to reaffirm what is working well, make improvements where necessary to better meet today's challenges, and eliminate what no longer achieves our goals.

This bill leaves present law largely intact, but it does make some important changes to improve program accountability, expand services to meet the changing needs of today's families, and to increase the capacity of these programs to reach each of the program's purposes.

The reauthorization of Head Start expands the Early Head Start program for our youngest children, in a manner which balances the desire to make this program available to more children and families and the need to ensure that every Head Start program meets the high standards of quality that we have demanded.

The new evaluation and research provisions will provide much-needed information about how the program operates, help identify the "best practices," and will guide the grantees, the Department of Health and Human Services, and Congress to continue the improvements in Head Start which began four years ago.

This legislation expands the Head Start competitive grant process to include for-profit service providers. All Head Start grantees must meet the same high level of performance standards and outcome measures. Tax status does not guarantee the quality of a program—good or bad. The most important issue is selecting the best possible provider, non-profit or for-profit, public or private, to deliver Head Start services. That is what this legislation does.

The second major program authorized under this legislation is the Community Services Block Grant, or CSBG. This program provides funding to States for work in local communities to alleviate the causes of poverty. That's an easily defined goal, but getting there takes lots of work, and diverse communities across the nation are taking equally as diverse approaches to meeting it.

Local Community Action Agencies, working with other groups and individuals in their communities, are helping people find and keep a job. They are helping them go back to school or get their GED. Provisions in this legislation will help States and local communities to continue this important work.

For almost two decades, the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) has provided a lifeline to countless Americans who cannot pay their fuel bills. The program works very well. It is widely regarded as a model block grant program that gives states the flexibility to meet the needs of their low-income residents while ensuring an appropriate level of accountability for federal dollars.

The reauthorization of LIHEAP will help about four million low-income, disabled, and elderly households pay their fuel bills so they won't have to struggle to keep warm in the winter or to avoid heatstroke in the summer. They won't be forced to choose between heating and eating. Although some four million households received LIHEAP benefits this year, if we had the resources, some 30 million households would be eligible for LIHEAP assistance. This legislation establishes an authorization level that will permit Congress to increase funding for LIHEAP, a goal towards which I will continue to work.

I know some of our colleagues in Congress wonder whether we still need a LIHEAP program. Today I think we send a strong message that the program is more important than ever, especially in light of welfare reform efforts. Low- and fixed-income households still spend at least 18 percent of their income on energy bills, a proportion virtually unchanged since LIHEAP was created.

The Assets for Independence Act represents an important new approach to helping low-income families and individuals. Through Individual Development Accounts, the saving, investment, and accumulation of assets is encouraged as a way to increase economic self-sufficiency and build a future. Senator COATS crafted this portion of the legislation. His work in the development of asset-based policies to help low-income individuals and families has helped us approach an old problem from a new angle.

Senator COATS took the lead in shepherding this bill through the legislative process, from the first draft to the conference report. When the Committee on Labor and Human Resources marked-up the bill, they unanimously voted to change the name of the legislation to the Coats Act as a tribute to Senator COATS' dedication to issues affecting children and their families.

In both his personal and professional life, Senator COATS has been a long-standing activist on behalf of American families. He was a Big Brother in Indiana long before his political career began, and was recently elected President of the Board of Directors for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America. Early in his congressional career, Senator COATS served as the Republican leader for the House Select Committee on Children, Youth And Families.

Upon arriving in the Senate in 1989, he became the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Children and Families of the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources. Serving as the subcommittee's Chairman since 1995, Senator COATS has been a voice of reason and a tireless advocate for children and families.

His compassion and caring is evident in every piece of legislation that has come out of that subcommittee since Senator COATS became a member. When he leaves the Senate, I will miss his leadership and most of all, his friendship.

The Coats Human Services Reauthorization Act will serve to remind us all of his contributions to the Labor Committee and the Senate.

This legislation is the result of months of hard work, negotiation, and compromise. It has been a truly bipartisan, bicameral effort that has resulted in good public policy.

The legislation reinforces what works in these programs, and discards what does not, which is the whole purpose of a reauthorization.

It continues the mission that we began many years ago of empowering communities to help their most vulnerable populations, and it does this in a responsible manner. This bi-partisan effort would not have been possible without the hard work of many outstanding staff members.

With this legislation, Stephanie Monroe, the Staff Director for the Subcommittee on Children and Families, has added one more piece of effective public policy to her already impressive portfolio. Her work in researching, drafting, and negotiating this bill has been invaluable. Stephanie has been working in the Senate for fourteen years and I hope she will seriously consider continuing on here, after Senator COATS retires.

I want to thank Stephanie Robinson and Amy Lockhart, of Senator KENNEDY's staff and Suzanne Day and Jim Fenton of Senator DODD's staff for their contributions and their commitment to keeping this legislation a bipartisan effort.

Conferring a bill always involves long hours, hard work, and much patience. I appreciate the efforts of Denzel McGuire, Mary Gardner Clagett, and Sally Lovejoy on the staff of the House Committee on Education and Workforce.

I also want to thank Jackie Cooney of Senator GREGG's staff, Alex Nock and Marcy Phillips with Representative MARTINEZ, Melanie Marola with Representative CASTLE, Amy Adair and Randy Brant with Representative SOUDER for their work on this legislation.

Brian Jones recently left my staff on the Committee on Labor and Human Resources, but before he left, he contributed enormously to the crafting of this legislation. I wish him well in his new venture, and appreciate his contributions to this and other legislation while on my staff. Geoff Brown, who is on my personal staff was instrumental in crafting and negotiating the LIHEAP portion of the bill. Working with Cameron Taylor, Legislative Director of the Northeast-Midwest Senate Coalition, Geoff made sure that this critical program will continue to meet the needs of millions of low-income families.

Kimberly Barnes-O'Connor provided valuable and tireless counsel throughout this process, proving once again her capacity to put the interests of children and families first. I commend her for her exemplary service to me, the committee, the Congress, and the constituents we serve through these critical human services programs.

Mark Powden, the Staff Director for the Committee on Labor and Human Resources, as always, helped to clear the obstacles and push this legislation forward. Thank you, Mark.

I yield the remainder of my time to Senator COATS, who is worthy of all the praise possible with respect to this legislation and his total service to this Nation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Indiana is recognized.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, allow me to thank my colleagues for their kind words and also for their assistance.

At a time when our two parties are often divided over issues, major issues, this is truly a bipartisan effort. This is something that could not have been achieved without the cooperation, support, help and assistance of people on both sides of the aisle. I thank the chairman and Senator KENNEDY for their work with us on this. I thank my counterpart on the Children and Families Subcommittee, Senator DODD; Senator GREGG has been a supporter of this effort, and others on the committee who have worked hard and worked diligently with us to bring us to this particular point.

Each of the four programs that are encompassed in this bill represent an all too rare occurrence—a forging of public and private partnership to combat the effects of poverty and unleashing the vast resources of one of our most important assets, the local community.

The first component of this bill is the reauthorization of Head Start, a program that has proven to be significant in providing an opportunity for children to realize their full potential. It was more than a decade ago that Congressman GEORGE MILLER and I, as chairman and ranking member, respectively, of the Children, Youth and Family Subcommittee in the House of Representatives, asked the General Accounting Office to do an analysis of all of the programs that affected children, youth and families under the title and the theme of what works, what doesn't and why. It was a 2-year exhaustive study, and it came back listing eight Federal programs that provided real tangible benefits and a real return on the investment of the taxpayer's dollar and encouraged support for those programs.

At the head of the list, No. 1 on the list was Head Start. It said that for the taxpayer's investment in providing low-income, disadvantaged children with opportunities to prepare to enter the educational system, he or she was saving an enormous amount of money that would have had to be spent on remedial education and would have been potentially lost because those children were not prepared to enter the educational system. Since that time, I have been an ardent supporter of Head Start, in trying to provide funds for Head Start and also to make sure the program is effective. It is a program that clearly has provided many millions of children opportunities that they would not have otherwise had.

However, having said that, there have been questions about the quality of the program. We have experienced varying degrees of quality, from excellent in some cases to very poor in other cases. With the 1994 reauthorization, Congress and the administration made a commitment to enhance the focus on quality improvement. Since the last reauthorization, the Head Start bureau has offered technical assistance, resources and support to Head Start programs that are committed to pursuing excellence—again, something that is all too rare. We have also terminated, actually terminated grants to those programs that were experiencing deficiencies to the extent that they could not be remedied.

Close to 100 Head Start grantees have been terminated or have relinquished their grants since 1994—the first time in history that deficient programs were actually recompeted. These are essential. Too often here we authorize a new program with glowing words and the best of direction that we can provide, only to find later that those programs did not match up to the promise, and yet they are continued, they are perpetuated, they continue to receive funding, we continue to support mediocrity or even worse.

We have, through the actions in 1994 and subsequent, infused into the Head Start Program not only the technical assistance and resources and support necessary, but also the oversight and the investigation and the determination that we are either going to make some of these programs that are deficient, better, or we are going to recompete them—and, as I said, more than 100 have been recompeted.

The reauthorization bill that we are dealing with today builds on that commitment by requiring that 60 percent of the Head Start funds in the first years go toward enhancing program quality. It is important that we expand Head Start. We obviously want to get as many children in the program as possible, but it does no good to expand the program, to enroll more children, if the existing programs are not providing the health and the benefit and the quality that the children need to give them that edge that they need. So the emphasis on quality early and expansion later, I think, is the proper emphasis.

We also take steps to make sure Head Start students obtain the goal of school readiness by requiring the establishment of educational performance standards to ensure that the children develop a minimum level of literacy awareness and understanding coupled with very specific measures to help us assess whether or not this program is actually working. Under this scenario, poor programs, poorly administered programs, will be identified, they will be offered technical assistance, and if they fail to correct the deficiencies, they will be terminated and the grant recompeted.

We have responded to the concerns of Head Start programs to be able to more fully address the emerging needs of working families for full-day, full-year services, by significantly enhancing the Collaboration Grant Program in current law by requiring active collaboration between Head Start and other early care in education programs within the State, and we have included the President's request for an expansion of early Head Start programs from the current 7.5 percent in fiscal year 1999 to 10 percent in fiscal year 2003.

Finally, in response to concerns raised about the lack of reliable research on Head Start, which can be used as a basis for determining its effectiveness, we have authorized the National Impact Study of Head Start. These studies will yield very valuable information about how this program is working and whether Head Start is, in fact, making a difference.

Mr. President, the whole emphasis here, as you can tell, is on sufficient oversight, sufficient involvement in the program, to determine how it is working and to establish and identify where it is not working, and to help make where it is not working better and, if not, if necessary, recompeting the whole process and turning it over to someone else.

There are three other components of this particular bill before us. One is the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program. I will allow other Members, including the chairman, to address that. That is an issue they have been involved in more directly than I have.

Another is the Community Services Block Grant, an excellent example of what can happen when Washington allows local communities to design their own responses to local problems. The "Washington knows best," the "Washington has one model formula that fits all sizes," is pretty much a discounted and discarded theory. We are working now, and need to work, with local communities to identify local problems and allow them to help us and work with us in fashioning a local solution.

Mr. President, 90 percent of the funds provided under this act, the Community Services Block Grant, must be passed through by the State to local eligible entities, which include a variety of public and nonprofit organizations, community action agencies, and faith-based neighborhood organizations.

We made some important improvements in this act, requiring each State to participate in a performance measurement system, again to determine effectiveness of programs and make sure they are meeting their program goals and priorities.

We have reauthorized a number of subcomponents of this—the Community Economic Development Program, the Rural Economic Development Program, National Youth Sports, the Community Food and Nutrition Program—and created a new program called the Neighborhood Innovation Projects, so that grants to private, neighborhood-based nonprofits can test or assist in the development of new approaches and developments in dealing with these community problems. These grants may be used for a variety of purposes, including gang interventions, addressing school violence, or any other purposes identified by the community as a problem resulting from poverty and consistent with the purposes of this CSBG.

Finally, let me address a program that has been near and dear to my heart, something that has been part of the Project for American Renewal that I authored some time ago. This is a 5-year demonstration program entitled “Assets for Independence.” It is designed to encourage low-income individuals to develop strong habits for saving money. It is an IRA for low-income people. The current IRA program really is only available to those who have assets readily available or accessible to put into this saving program. The Assets for Independence Act allows sponsoring organizations to provide participating individuals and families intensive financial counseling and assistance in developing investment plans for education, home ownership, and entrepreneurship.

I am excited about this new program. As I said, it is part of the Project for American Renewal legislation I first introduced in 1995. It is estimated that our 5-year investment of $100 million in asset building through these individual accounts will generate 7,000-plus new businesses, 70,000 new jobs, $730 million in additional earnings, 12,000 new or rehabilitated homes, 6,600 families removed from welfare rolls, and 20,000 adults obtaining high school, vocational, and college degrees.

Each of the programs we are authorizing today represents an effort to give people a hand up, not simply a hand-out. They are an acknowledgment that when one family suffers, we all suffer as Americans; when communities break down, we all pay a price, and therefore we all have a stake in helping people achieve the American dream.

The legislation recognizes the limits of government and the fact that many of our worst social problems will never be solved by government alone. We are beginning to recognize that there are people and institutions, families, churches, synagogues, parishes, community volunteer organizations, faith-based charities, that are able to communicate societal ideals and restore individual hope, and we need to allow those organizations to compete to provide services, and we have done so in each of the programs I have described.

Community activist Robert Woodson makes the point that every social problem, no matter how severe, is currently being defeated somewhere by some volunteer community group, faith-based organization, or others. This is now one of America's great untold stories. No alternative approach to our cultural crisis holds such promise, because these institutions have resources denied to government at every level, resources of love, spiritual vitality, and true compassion.

Mr. President, I have been proud to be associated with one organization entitled Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America. I have been with them now for 26 years as a Big Brother as a local board member, board president, now as the president of the national board. This, along with organizations like Boys Clubs, Girls Clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and others, provides just one example of how local volunteer organizations can provide volunteers who can provide help to children to give them the kind of mentoring and support they need in difficult years, growing up often in one-parent families or families with poverty.

There are examples of this all across the board. The Gospel Rescue Ministry's efforts across the country have reached out to drug-addicted homeless individuals and provided astounding support. Whether the problem is teen pregnancy, school dropouts, school violence, children without fathers—whatever—there are organizations that we need to tap into, support, and enhance their involvement, providing support for young people and addressing social problems in this country.

Mr. President, I see my time is expiring. I did not mean to go on as long as I have. I hope I have not used up all the time. I know Senator KENNEDY and others are on the floor to talk about this. These programs, I believe, the ones we are reauthorizing, represent the true measure of our compassion as a nation.

I want to end by giving credit to Stephanie Johnson, who has poured her heart and soul into this reauthorization. She has given more than any one person can ask, making this a reality. This would not have happened without her involvement. Good staff makes good Senators, and she is the epitome of good staff. I thank her personally and publicly for her work in making this, and many of the things that have happened within our committee, a reality.

With that, I appreciate the extra time and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, how much time do I have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 11½ minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, as the Nation is focusing on a number of matters today, I want to say what a really important achievement the Senate will accomplish in a few moments when we pass this very extensive authorization legislation, about $35 billion over the next 5 years.

The legislation has been described by our colleagues and friends, but I join in echoing the sentiments that have been expressed this morning in paying tribute to our friend and colleague from Indiana, Senator COATS, the staff who have worked with him, others on the committee, and our chairman, Senator JEFFORDS, in moving this legislation forward.

I remember back to 1994—maybe the Senator from Indiana remembers—when we were working at that time on the reauthorization of the Head Start Program. Many of us had been long-time supporters of that program. It is fair to say, at that time, that legislation, or the legislation that we are considering here, would not have been reauthorized unless it had the active involvement and leadership of the Senator from Indiana. That was a time of great crisis in the Head Start Program. I think the accolades that have been given about the Senator are well-deserved.

I thank him, in particular, for saving the program back in 1994, but also for the continued commitment that he has had, along with my colleague, Senator DODD, for these past years. As Senator COATS has pointed out, he was working as a cochair of the children's caucus in the House of Representatives. Our colleague and friend Senator DODD is co-chair of the children's caucus in the Senate. Both of these Senators have probably spent more time focusing on the needs of children in our country than any others and have worked in a very important bipartisan way.

I join with those who pay tribute to the Senator from Indiana, and naming this legislation after him is really well-deserved. I welcome the opportunity to stand with those who say he has made an indispensable contribution to the needs of poor children in our society. I say that with great sincerity and appreciation, because he has made a very, very important difference, not just in shaping these programs, but basically in helping our country respond to these particular needs.

There have been times when we have had differences on various policy issues. But we are friends, and the Senate is at its best when we have differences on some matters, but we are able to work them out and, most of all, to respect the individual integrity which Members bring to these issues. The legislation before us today—and I urge our fellow Members to support it—is really the product of our best efforts. I think it will make an important difference in the lives of children.

I join with those in congratulating the Senator and in appreciating his leadership.

Mr. President, at a time when we have extraordinary prosperity, it is important that we look primarily at the needs of children, particularly the poor children. This bill invests in America's future by providing urgently needed assistance to low-income families and children.

This bill reauthorizes the Head Start program, the comprehensive early childhood development program for low-income children.

For more than thirty years, Head Start has been providing educational, nutritional, medical, and social services to help young children and their families reach their full potential. The advances made by this bill will ensure even greater success for the program in meeting the needs of today's families.

In preparing this bill, we've made significant efforts to improve program quality. That was particularly a matter that the Senator from Indiana was strongly committed to. We've established new education performance standards, to ensure that Head Start children enter school ready to learn. We've strengthened teacher qualifications, so that children will receive the very best care.

We've also worked to encourage closer cooperation by Head Start with other agencies so that full-day, full-year services will be more readily available to working families who need this kind of extended care.

More than 830,000 children currently receive the benefits of Head Start and they will continue to do so. Just as important, this bill makes it possible over the next five years to reach out more effectively to the 60% of eligible children who are not now receiving these services.

Head Start has demonstrated its success in lifting families out of poverty. With the program's support, many families obtain the boost they need to achieve economic self-sufficiency.

A letter I received from Monica Marafuga, a Head Start teacher in Massachusetts, makes this point well:

I believe that Head start is sometimes the only hope for some families. As a teacher, I see the many families and children who need someone to guide them and point them in the right direction for a better life.

The Early Head Start program is also greatly enhanced by this bill. This program was established four years ago to provide high quality comprehensive services to very young children, from birth to age 3, and their families. There is nothing that can replace a parent and a home that is supportive and loving. But as we have seen, many of the children in our society are missing the support which can help them develop at a very critical and important time of their development.

We know that the first three years of life are a critical period in every child's development. We are mindful of the excellent studies that have been done by the Carnegie Commission about the importance of the development of a child's brain in the first months and years of life. The Early Head Start Program helps in developing those cognitive, emotional, and social skills that can help children seize future opportunities and fulfill their highest potential. This is something we want to encourage.

I welcome the fact that we are able to see an important enhancement of the Early Start Program. I'm especially pleased that this bill includes provisions to establish a new training and technical assistance fund, which will reinforce the program's commitment to provide quality services through on-going professional support for program staff.

The Early Start Program is having an important impact, and in this bill we continue a gradual expansion of the program so that more young children can be served. Currently, less than 2% of those eligible are receiving its benefit. This bill will expand the program over the next five years to cover an additional 40,000 babies and toddlers. This is a modest expansion, but one which I think, with its success, can be built on over future years.

In addition, the bill also renews our commitment to reducing poverty by reauthorizing the Community Services Block Grant. This program helps communities by providing assistance to address the specific needs of localities, marshaling other existing resources in the community, and encouraging the involvement of those directly affected.

Funds may be used for a variety of services, including employment, transportation, education, housing, nutrition, and child care.

I remember when Senator Robert Kennedy sponsored the initial Community Development Corporation more than 30 years ago, which was the precursor to the Community Services Block Grant. This program has a proven record of fostering innovative methods for eliminating the causes of poverty. The need today is as great as it has ever been. Poverty continues to be a significant problem across the nation.

We know that 37 million of our fellow citizens live in poverty. Children are particularly vulnerable, representing 40% of those living in poverty despite the fact that they make up only 25% of the overall population. These figures are particularly disturbing because studies show that children living in poverty tend to suffer disproportionately from stunted growth and lower test scores. The Community Services Block Grant can help alleviate these conditions and benefit these children.

The legislation also reauthorizes the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program for the next five years. The funding levels provided for this important program will ensure that LIHEAP continues to help low-income households with their home energy costs, particularly in extreme weather.

I am especially pleased that this legislation includes a provision to clarify the criteria for the President to release emergency LIHEAP funds. This assistance will enable many families hurt by hot or cold weather, ice storms, floods, earthquakes, and other natural disasters to get through the season.

In addition, it will enable the release of emergency LIHEAP funds if there is a significant increase in unemployment, home energy disconnections, or participation in a public benefit program.

There is clearly a continuing need for a strong LIHEAP program. 95% of the five million households receiving LIHEAP assistance have annual incomes below $18,000. They spend an extremely burdensome 18% of their income on energy, compared to the average middle-class family, which spends only 4%.

Without a strong LIHEAP program, families will be forced to spend less money on food and more money on their utility bills—the so-called "heat or eat effect." The result is increased malnutrition among children.

Without a strong LIHEAP program, children will fall behind in school because they will be unable to study in their frigid households.

Without a strong LIHEAP program, low income elderly will be at an even greater risk of hypothermia. In fact, older Americans accounted for more than half of all hypothermia deaths in 1991.

LIHEAP is clearly a lifeline for the most vulnerable citizens in society, and I commend the House and Senate for strengthening this vital program.

This bill also establishes a new and innovative approach to helping low-income individuals achieve financial independence, and again, I commend Senator COATS for his leadership on this new program. Individual Development Accounts are designed to promote economic self-sufficiency by providing matching funds for deposits made into qualifying savings accounts. Funds can be used to purchase a first home, open a small business, or pay for college education.

This program shows great promise for improving the lives of many individuals and families in communities across the country.

Mr. President, I want to just use the last minute in sharing my commendation for the wonderful staff, Republican and Democrat, who worked very closely together. This bipartisan effort is really the most effective way to develop the best possible legislation.

I want to also recognize Stephanie Monroe, who will be leaving the Senate and has been really a stalwart. Everyone has enormous respect for her. She has worked with Senator COATS, but I think all of us have had enormous confidence in her leadership. She has done really an outstanding job. I also thank Suzanne Day and Kimberly Barnes O'Connor, and Amy Lockhart, a Congressional Fellow in my office, and Stephanie Robinson of my staff who is an enormously gifted, talented and committed individual.

The Clinton Administration worked effectively with us in the development of this legislation, and they also deserve great credit. I want to particularly recognize Helen Taylor who is the Associate Commissioner of the Head Start Bureau at the Department of Health and Human Services. Ms. Taylor has dedicated her professional career to improving the lives of young children and has had over 30 years of distinguished service in the field of early childhood development. Her knowledge and experience proved invaluable in this process, and I thank her for her true commitment to the children of Head Start.

This bill ensures the continuation of these important programs into the 21st century. Again, I thank the chairman of our committee, Senator JEFFORDS, and Senator DODD, and Senator COATS who really have done an extraordinary job in bringing this legislation to where it is today.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I want to take just a couple seconds to join in the accolades which Senator KENNEDY has made for the various staff members, and also to recognize all the tremendous work that Senator KENNEDY himself has done not only today but throughout the years on these very valuable programs.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I am delighted to stand here and thank the chairman and the ranking member, the Senator from Massachusetts, as we are about to adopt the Coats Human Services Reauthorization Act, which includes Head Start, LIHEAP and the community services block grants.

People are going to wonder. This is the second day in a row that I find myself on the floor extolling the tremendous contribution of my colleague from Indiana.

We were involved in a piece of legislation yesterday. But I think all of us, as I said yesterday, are going to miss our friend, who is going to be here only a few more days and will move on to another chapter in his life.

But it is highly appropriate, given his tremendous work over his career in the Senate on behalf of children and families that this piece of legislation is going to be named in honor of his service to our country.

I am very pleased to join in that effort, and to commend him for his spectacular work over the years of service in the Senate.

Senator COATS and I have worked intensively with Senator JEFFORDS, Senator KENNEDY, other members of our committee, and the House committee to complete this important reauthorization. The strong bipartisan support for this bill is a clear statement of how we all view the crucial programs included in this bill. And it is also a testament to the leadership of Senator COATS on this legislation. While we have not necessarily agreed on every issue, I have always admired Senator COATS dedication to working to help working families, and in particular, to helping children. His presence on the Labor Committee will surely be missed, and I am pleased that the full committee chose to name this important bill after Senator COATS, as a show of respect and admiration for his service in the Senate.

This bill is fundamentally about expanding opportunity in America for all of our citizens. Under the umbrella of the Human Services Act, low income communities, their families and children receive more than $5 billion of assistance each year. These dollars support the basic building blocks of stronger communities—care and education for young children in Head Start, food, job and economic development through the Community Services Block grant, and home heating assistance through LIHEAP.

Head Start is the nation's leading child development program, because it focuses on the needs of the whole child. Inherently, we know that a child cannot be successful if he or she has unidentified health needs, if his or her parents are not involved in their education, and if he or she is not well-nourished or well-rested. Head Start is the embodiment of those concerns and works each day to meet children's critical needs. This year, Head Start will serve over 830,000 children and their families this year, and nearly 6,000 in my home state of Connecticut.

The bill before us today further strengthens the Head Start program: We continue the expansion of the Early Head Start program, increasing the set aside for this program to 10 percent in FY 2002. Anyone who has picked up a magazine or newspaper within the last year knows how vital the first three years of child's life are to their development. This program, which we established in 1994, extends comprehensive, high-quality services to these young children and their parents, to make sure the most is made of this window of opportunity.

We have added new provisions to encourage collaboration within states and local communities as well as within individual Head Start programs to expand the services they offer to families to full-day and full-year services, where appropriate, and to leverage other child care dollars to improve quality and better meet family needs.

We emphasize the importance of school readiness and literacy preparation in Head Start. While I think this has always been a critical part of Head Start, this bill ensures that gains will continue to be made in this area.

Mr. President, this bill puts Head Start on strong footing as we approach the 21st Century. It is a framework within which Head Start can continue to grow to meet the needs of more children and their families. What is unfortunate is that we cannot guarantee more funding for Head Start—I think it is shameful that there are waiting lists for Head Start and that only 40 percent of eligible children are served by this program. And Early Head Start, which is admittedly a new program, serves just a tiny fraction of the infants and toddlers in need of these services.

The President has set a laudable goal to reach 1 million children by 2002. But I say we need to do more. We need a plan to serve 2 million children—all those eligible and in need of services—as soon as possible.

Some argue that meeting the goal of fully funding Head Start will be too costly. Yes, it will cost a great deal to get there. But my question is how much more will it cost not to get there?

Studies show us that children in quality early childhood development programs, such as Head Start, start school more ready to learn than their non-Head Start counterparts. They are more likely to keep up with their classmates, avoid placement in special education, and graduate from high school. They are also less likely to become teenage mothers and fathers, go on welfare, or become involved in violence or the criminal justice system.

How much does it cost when we don't see these benefits?

I know this is an issue for another place and another venue. But I am hopeful as we strengthen Head Start we can also strengthen our resolve to expand this successful program to reach more children and their families.

Mr. President, the bill before us also makes important changes to the Community Services Block Grant program. CSBG makes funds available to states and local communities to assist low-income individuals and help alleviate the causes of poverty. One thousand local service providers—mainly Community Action Agencies—use these federal funds to address the root causes of poverty within their communities. CSBG dollars are particularly powerful because local communities have substantial flexibility in determining where these dollars are best spent to meet their local circumstances.

I have had the pleasure of visiting Community Action Agencies in Connecticut many times. They are exciting, vibrant places at the very center of their communities—filled with adults taking literacy and job training courses, children at Head Start centers, seniors with housing or other concerns, and youths participating in programs or volunteering their time.

To see clearly how critical the CSBG program is to the nation's low income families, one only needs to look at the statistics. The CSBG program in 1995 served more than 11.5 million people, or one in three Americans living in poverty. Three-quarters of CSBG clients have incomes that fall below the federal poverty guideline.

This bill recognizes the fundamental strength of this program and makes modest changes to encourage broader participation by neighborhood groups. In addition, it improves the accountability of local programs.

This bill also reauthorizes the vitally important Low Income Heating and Energy Assistance Program, or LIHEAP. Nearly 4.2 million low-income households received LIHEAP assistance during FY1996, more than 70,000 households in Connecticut. One quarter of those assisted by LIHEAP funds are elderly. Another 25 percent are individuals with disabilities. I cannot overvalue the importance of this assistance—it is nearly as necessary as food and water to a low-income senior citizen or family with children seeking help to stay warm in the winter—or as we saw a few months ago in the Southwest—to stay cool during the summer.

This bill makes no fundamental changes to the LIHEAP program. I am very pleased we increase the authorization of the program to $2 billion, which recognizes the great need for this help. We also put into place a system to more accurately and quickly designate natural disasters. Early disaster designation will allow for the more efficient distribution of the critically important emergency LIHEAP funds, aiding States devastated by a natural disaster.

This bill contains one new, important program—the Individual Development Accounts, based on a bill offered by Senator COATS and Senator HARKIN. Individual Development Accounts, or IDA's, are dedicated savings accounts for very low income families, similar in structure to IRA's, that can be used to pay for post-secondary education, buy a first home, or capitalize a business. This program is a welcome addition to the Human Services Act family. The Assets for Independence title will provide low-income individuals and families with new opportunities to move their families out of poverty through savings.

This is a strong bill and it is a good bill. I hope my colleagues will support this conference report, and again I want to thank Senator COATS for his committed leadership on this effort.

For all of those reasons, Mr. President, I commend the chairman of the committee and again the ranking member. Suzanne Day of my office and Jim Fenton did a tremendous job; Stephanie Monroe from Senator COATS' office, Stephanie Robinson from Senator KENNEDY's office and Kimberly Barnes O'Connor of Senator JEFFORDS' office did a tremendous job in pulling this together. We thank all of them for their efforts.

Again, I thank the Senator from Vermont for his graciousness.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of the conference committee on S. 2206 for their hard work on this legislation which reauthorizes the Head Start program, the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance program, and the Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) program. I am particularly grateful to the conferees for including in this legislation language that will expand the opportunities for charitable and religious organizations to serve their communities with Community Services Block Grant funds. This language, which is based upon my Charitable Choice provision in the 1996 welfare reform law, will encourage successful charitable and faith-based organizations to expand their services to the poor while assuring them that they will not have to extinguish their religious character as a result of receiving government funds.

This provision makes clear that states may use CSBG funds to contract with charitable, religious and private organizations to run programs intended to fight poverty and alleviate its effects on people and their communities. When states do choose to partner with the private sector, the charitable choice concept ensures that religious organizations are considered on an equal basis with all other private organizations.

For years, America's charities and churches have been transforming shattered lives by addressing the deeper needs of people—by instilling hope and values which help change behavior and attitudes. By contrast, government social programs have often failed miserably in moving recipients from dependency and despair to responsibility and independence. We in Congress need to find ways to allow successful faith-based organizations to succeed where government has failed, and to unleash the cultural remedy that our society so desperately needs.

Unfortunately, in the past, many faith-based organizations have been afraid—often rightfully so—of accepting governmental funds in order to help the poor and downtrodden. They fear that participation in government programs would not only require them to alter their buildings, internal governance, and employment practices, but also make them compromise the very religious character which motivates them to reach out to people in the first place.

My charitable choice measure is intended to allay such fears and to prevent government officials from misconstruing constitutional law by banning faith-based organizations from the mix of private providers for fear of violating the Establishment Clause. Even when religious organizations are permitted to participate, government officials have often gone overboard by requiring such organizations to sterilize buildings or property of religious character and to remove any sectarian connections from their programs. This discrimination can destroy the character of many faith-based programs and diminish their effectiveness in helping people climb from despair and dependence to dignity and independence.

Charitable choice embodies existing U.S. Supreme Court case precedents in an effort to clarify to government officials and charitable organizations alike what is constitutionally permissible when involving religiously-affiliated institutions. Based upon these precedents, the legislation provides specific protections for religious organizations when they provide services with government funds. For example, the government cannot discriminate against an organization on the basis of its religious character. A participating faith-based organization also retains its religious character and its control over the definition, development, practice, and expression of its religious beliefs.

Additionally, the government cannot require a religious organization to alter its form of internal governance or remove religious art, icons, or symbols to be eligible to participate. Finally, religious organizations may consider religious beliefs and practices in their employment decisions. I have been told by numerous faith-based entities and attorneys representing them that autonomy in employment decisions is crucial in maintaining an organization's mission and character.

Charitable choice also states that funds going directly to religious organizations cannot be used for sectarian worship, instruction, or proselytization.

In recent years, Congress has begun to recognize more and more that government alone will never cure our societal ills. We must find ways to enlist America's faith-based charities and nongovernmental organizations to help fight poverty and lift the downtrodden. The legislation before us today provides us with such an opportunity.

Again, I want to express my appreciation to the conferees and their staff that worked on this legislation: Senators JEFFORDS, COATS, GREGG, KENNEDY and DODD, and Congressmen GOODLING, CASTLE, SOUDER, CLAY, and MARTINEZ. I especially want to commend Senator DAN COATS, the Chairman of the Labor Committee's Subcommittee on Children and Families, for his desire to include my charitable choice language in the Community Services Block Grant Reauthorization. Senator COATS worked very hard in the conference committee to garner bipartisan support for this provision. Thanks to his efforts, and the efforts of this Congress, we will soon expand the opportunities for charitable and faith-based organizations to make a positive impact in their neighborhoods and communities through the Community Services Block Grant program.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I wish to express my sincere appreciation and admiration for the distinguished Senator from Indiana. The Senator from Indiana has set a standard and an example in this body of what it means to be a Senator, what it means to be a decent Christian gentleman, the likes of which I do not think have been surpassed in my experience here. I have had the honor of calling him friend. I have had the opportunity to serve or participate with him in a prayer breakfast that he leads. He sets the kind of example of good public service that all of us ought to seek to emulate. And I am delighted that he has played an important role in this piece of legislation, as he has in so many others. And it will be, I am sure, successfully pursued.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the conference report is agreed to, and the motion to reconsider the vote is laid upon the table.

The conference report was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now go into executive session to consider the nomination of William A. Fletcher to be a United States Circuit Judge.

NOMINATION OF WILLIAM A. FLETCHER, OF CALIFORNIA, TO BE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report Executive Calendar No. 619, on which there will be 90 minutes of debate equally divided in the usual form.

The assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of William A. Fletcher, of California, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Ninth Circuit.

Mr. SESSIONS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, the role of the Senate is to advise and consent in nominations by the President for judicial vacancies. That is understood in the Constitution. Every nominee of the President comes before the Judiciary Committee and then they come before this body for a vote. We are at this point analyzing the nomination of William Fletcher, Willie Fletcher from California, to the Ninth Circuit. I regretfully must say I have concluded that I have to oppose that nomination. And I would like to discuss the reasons why.

Most of the nominations that have come forward from the President have received favorable review by the Judiciary Committee. In fact, we cleared nine today. A number of them are on the docket today and will probably pass out today. So we are making some substantial progress.

Nearly half of the vacancies that exist now in Federal courts are because there are no nominees for those vacancies—almost half of them. But on occasion we need to stand up as a Senate and affirm certain facts about our courts and our Nation. One of the facts that we need to affirm is that courts must carry out the rule of law, that they are not there to make law. The courts are there to enforce law as written by the Congress and as written by the people through their Constitution that we adopted over 200 years ago. Also, that is, I think, where we are basically today.

With regard to this nomination, it is to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in California. Without any doubt, the Ninth Circuit is considered the most liberal circuit in the United States. It is also the largest circuit. There are 11 circuit courts of appeals. And in the United States we have the U.S. district judges. These are the trial judges. The next level—the only intermediate level—is the courts of appeals. And they are one step below the U.S. Supreme Court. It is the courts of appeals that superintend, day after day, the activities of the district judges who practice under them.

There are more district judges in the circuit than there are circuit judges. And every appeal from a district judge's ruling, almost virtually every one, would go to the courts of appeals in California and Arizona and the States in the West that are part of the Ninth Circuit. Those appeals go to the Ninth Circuit, not directly to the U.S. Supreme Court. As they rule on those matters, they set certain policy within the circuit.

We have—I think Senator BIDEN made a speech on it once—we have 1 Constitution in this country, not 11. The circuit courts of appeals are required to show fidelity to the Supreme Court and to the Constitution. The Supreme Court is the ultimate definer of the Constitution. And the courts of appeals must take the rulings of the Supreme Court and interpret them and apply them directly to their judges who work under them or in their circuit and in fact set the standards of the law.

We do not have 11 different circuits setting 11 different policies—at least we should not. But it is a known fact that the Ninth Circuit for many years has been out of step. Last year, 28 cases from the Ninth Circuit made it to the U.S. Supreme Court. The Supreme Court does not hear every case. This is why the circuits are so important.

Probably 95 percent of the cases decided by the circuits never are appealed to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court will not hear them. But they agreed to hear 28 cases from the Ninth Circuit. And of those 28 cases, they reversed 27 of them. They reversed an unprecedented number. They reversed the Ninth Circuit 27 out of the 28 times they reviewed a case from that circuit. And this is not a matter of recent phenomena.

I was a Federal prosecutor for almost 15 years, and during that time I was involved in many criminal cases. And you study the law, and you seek out cases where you can find them. Well, it was quite obvious—and Federal prosecutors all over the country used to joke about the fact that the criminal defense lawyers, whenever they could not find any law from anywhere else, they could always find a Ninth Circuit case that was favorable to the defendant. And they were constantly, even in those days, being reversed by the U.S. Supreme Court, because the U.S. Supreme Court's idea and demand is that we have one Constitution, that the law be applied uniformly.

So I just say this. The New York Times, not too many months ago, wrote an article about the Ninth Circuit and said these words: "A majority of the U.S. Supreme Court considers the Ninth Circuit a rogue circuit, out of control. It needs to be brought back into control. They have been working on it for years but have not been able to do so."

All of that is sort of the background that we are dealing with today.

When we get a nominee to this circuit, I believe this Senate ought to utilize its advise and consent authority, constitutional duty, to ensure that the nominees to it bring that circuit from being a rogue circuit back into the mainstream of American law, so we do not have litigants time and again having adverse rulings, that they have to go to the Supreme Court—however many thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars—to get reversed.

This is serious business. Some say, "They just reversed them. Big deal." It costs somebody a lot of money, and a lot of cases that were wrong in that circuit were never accepted by the Supreme Court and were never reversed. The Supreme Court can't hear every case that comes out of every circuit. So we are dealing with a very serious matter.

The Senator from Ohio who I suspect will comment today on the nominee, Senator DeWine, articulated it well. When we evaluate nominees, we have to ask ourselves what will be the impact of that nomination on the court and the overall situation. We want to support the President. We support the President time and again. I have seen some Presidential nominees that are good nominees. I am proud to support them. There are two here today who I know personally that I think would be good Federal judges. But I can't say that about this one.

We need to send the President of the United States a message, that those Members of this body who participate in helping select nominees cannot, in good conscience, continue to accept nominations to this circuit who are not going to make it better and bring it back into the mainstream of American law.

With regard to Mr. Fletcher, he has never practiced law. The only real experience he has had outside of being a professor, was as a law clerk. His clerkship was for Justice William Brennan of the U.S. Supreme Court. That is significant and it is an honor to be selected to be a law clerk for the Supreme Court. But the truth is, Justice Brennan has always been recognized as the point man, the leading spokesman in American jurisprudence for an activist judiciary. I am not saying he is a bad man, but that is his position.

Justice Brennan used to dissent on every death penalty case, saying he adhered to the view that the death penalty was cruel and unusual punishment, and within that very Constitution he said he was interpreting, there are at least four to six references to the death penalty and capital crimes.
